

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A urological patient positioning table has a patient positioning plate with a head end and a foot end, and has a lifting column connected to the patient positioning plate. The lifting column is arranged at the head end of the patient positioning plate laterally next to the patient positioning plate.

1. A urological patient positioning table, comprising:
a. a patient positioning plate having a head end and a foot end;
b. a lifting column connected to the patient positioning plate at the head end, the lifting column being arranged laterally next to the patient positioning plate.